VIDEO: The golden era for fixed income?

02 May 2024, 3:54 pm CEST, written by UBS Editorial Team

As investors continue to watch a sea of economic data, thoughts go to actions by the Fed and then to investments. Blackrock's Rick Rieder joins the show to give his thoughts on the market. Why this could be a great time to be a fixed income investor.

Robust economic growth and elevated inflation have driven bond yields higher in recent months, improving potential returns for investors in quality fixed income. Investors can benefit from attractive yields and potential capital gains if yields fall (as we expect) and diversify portfolios against equity market risks. Beyond individual bonds, active and diversified fixed income exposure can provide investors with a convenient way to realize the full return potential of the asset class while managing global interest rate, credit, and concentration risks.
